Forgotten Books, 2017. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from A National Constitution: The Only Road to National Peace; A Letter to the President of the United States Mr. President, I have quoted the words of George Washington, to point my rebuke of your failure to comprehend the real needs of the country over which you preside more like anything else than like an inspiring leader. You have especially failed to take a single step towards what the past, the present, and the future unite in demanding, national consolidation. You were a directing general; you have been a drifting President. In your civil administration you have had the Opportunities of a giant, and you have used them like a dwarf. At the head of our army, you often triumphantly ?anked the enemy. At the head of our nation, your political foes and your political friends have taken turns in ?anking you. As the commander in the field, you were deter mined to keep on the same line, if it should take all summer you did so, and won for your country victory, and for yourself as a soldier imperishable fame. As our executive guide, so far from keeping on the same line, if it should take all summer, you have crooked and doubled like the Mississippi River, all the year round. Mr. President, your countrymen have not known where to find you. You have had no fixed principles of civil rule. Your compass has been subjected to the in?uence of so many magnets, that the people could not tell your course, or whether you were true to it or not. They may well doubt whether you could tell yourself. You have, indeed, at times, maintained the national honor with something...
